

— VORG-EAVY / FINAL ENGINE RESULT

Brooklyn leads.

But the honest answer is not “Brooklyn won.” It is “Brooklyn is our first controlled bet.”

01

— THE VERDICT IN PLAIN ENGLISH

Pick one corner. Keep three escape routes.

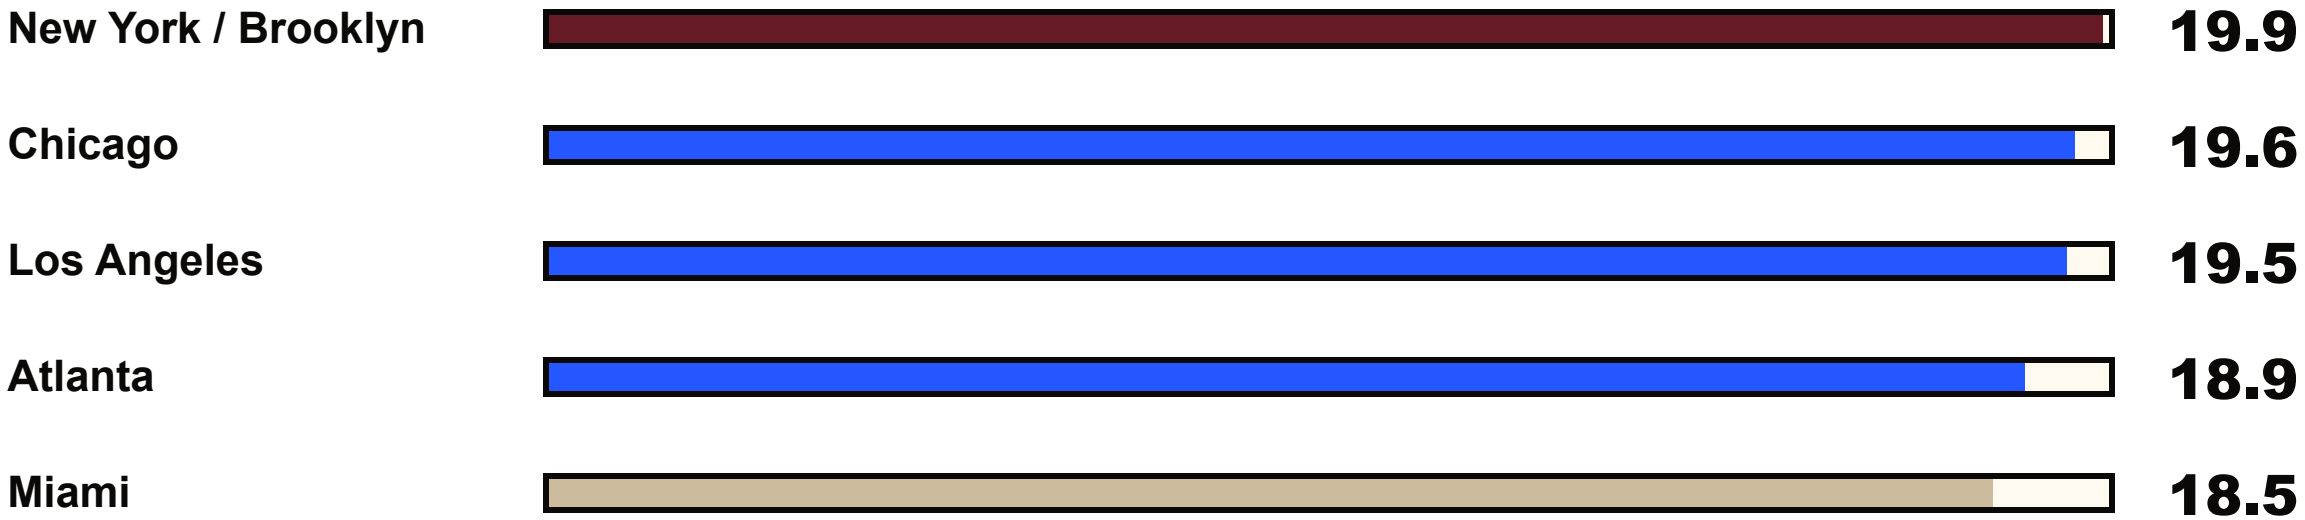

Imagine five lemonade-stand corners. Brooklyn looks best today, but all four top corners are almost tied. We open the smallest test at Brooklyn first and keep Chicago, Los Angeles, and Atlanta ready to replace it.

Lead nationally through Shopify. Learn locally through Brooklyn.

— WHAT THE CORRECTED ENGINE ACTUALLY SCORED

A very close race.

Brooklyn’s confidence is 36.3/100. The low score is intentional: vendor case studies, generic U.S. trends, and internal guesses no longer masquerade as strong local demand.

The model gives us an order of operations — not certainty.

— WHY THE ANSWER IS FRAGILE

The weather app has clouds, not rain gauges.

What we have

Dated public sources. Brand mechanisms. City context. Product-season logic. Shopify, customs, labeling, and creator-rule surfaces.

Each channel has one job.

YouTube

The founder explains fit, fabric, corrections, and trade-offs. Long-form becomes the truth library.

— WHAT LEADS THE STORY

The jacket opens the door. Denim proves the fit.

— THE FIRST MONEY DECISION

Choose one shipping door.

CA → US

Door A: Canada DDP

Ship from Canada with duties handled before delivery. Get the carrier quote, brokerage rules, return path, and tested customer promise.

Three moves. Then decide.

MOVE 01 / ECONOMICS

Make the route real

- Get DDP and 3PL quotes
- Build USD contribution by SKU
- Map returns and tax review

MOVE 02 / SIGNAL

Brooklyn does not own the crown.

01 Another city produces more metro-tagged product, size, checkout, or purchase action.

02 DDP or 3PL economics make the Brooklyn route unprofitable after duties and returns.

03 A consistent silhouette-search method concentrates interest in Chicago, Los Angeles, or Atlanta.

Two first-party wave results favor the founder-led runner-up over the named-circle

— THE FINAL ANSWER

Bet small. Learn fast. Keep the truth.

Brooklyn-led U.S. national test. Founder-led named circle. Honest-capacity drop. Shopify closes the loop. TikTok opens it.
